WSU ATHLETIC HISTORY

- The school's intercollegiate athletic program was established in 1917 by Dean David Mackenzie as part of Detroit Junior College.
- Wayne State was a charter member of the Mid-American Conference in 1946.
- A student poll selected the name of "Tartars" for the school's teams in 1927. In 1999, the university changed the name to the "Warriors," due to a feeling that the Tartars name was dated.
- 570 Academic All-Americans
- 415 All-Americans (103 in the last 3 years)
- One of 25 defining moments in NCAA history was when WSU diver Darcia Schileru was the first woman to compete in an NCAA Championship in 1973.
- WSU is the only institution to turn down a bid to the NCAA Division I Basketball Championship.
